VORTRAG MIT KLEINEM EMPFANG

"Chinese map studies, GIS method and the communication of the east and west in history"

Dr. Guo Yongqin (International Institute of Social History, Amsterdam)

Mo, 24. APR, 18 UHR

China has a long time history of map making. It differs from the western cartography, nevertheless, technologies of cartography in the West and East both influenced each other since the early modern period. The lecture puts its focus on the historical development of Chinese cartography techniques like landscape painting style, grid square style and graticules style. Furthermore there will be a discussion about the cultural communication between the East and the West.
